

August 1, 2016

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing on behalf of Marly Driskell for a recommendation as a nanny. When I first met Marly, I knew immediately she was the right fit for my family. Her happy and relaxed demeanor was just what this sleep deprived mother needed. After reviewing Marly's resume, I was impressed by her accomplishments and previous experience. On paper, she is more than qualified for any nanny position. However, what really stuck out was all the personal and glowing reference letters from pervious employers. I am proud to add my praises, as I know you will, too.

Marly worked for me from May 2016 to June 2016 as a night nanny three nights a week for our second son. At the time she started, our son was already two months old and we had already employed several night nannies to help piece together nights. Marly jumped right in to help continue his progress towards becoming an independent sleeper and his sleep/feeding schedule the other nannies started. She listened to what I wanted, asked clarifying questions and implemented it all flawlessly. She offered suggestions or reassurance based on her detailed account of each night. If she did not have previous knowledge, she reached out to her network of other nannies to ask for help.

During her time with us, Marly had a personal tragedy of losing her home and most possession to flooding. She had to sort through her belongings, clean up her home, and move out within a few days. Even after long days of dealing with this, she still showed up early, ready to work, and executed her duties all with a smile and positive attitude.

At the end of her employment with us, our son was sleeping from 7pm-7am, only waking up a one or two times a night, which included one small feeding. I felt rested and prepared to tackle the dreaded four month sleep regression on my own.

I cannot say enough good things about Marly. If you are like me, the biggest compliment is through actions not just words. With that being said, I look forward to future occasions to work with Marly.

Best,
Emily G.